His Smoke is Killing Me (30 sec)

I've never smoked a day in my life, but my husband does. What he doesn't realize is that his secondhand smoke can kill me.

Living with a pack-a-day smoker is just like smoking 50 packs a year. Secondhand smoke raises your risk of lung cancer by 45%, and almost doubles your risk of stroke.

There's a killer lurking in our children's face. It's in the air they breathe.

Secondhand smoke more than doubles the risk of crib death, or Sudden Infant Death Syndrome; it causes half of infants' respiratory illness; it is the leading cause of asthma.

That's just the beginning. Secondhand smoke permanently thickens their arteries, and significantly increases their risk of future cancers.

Secondhand smoke. It's not just smelly, it's deadly.

Secondhand Smoke Kills (30 sec fast)

We all know that cigarettes kill smokers, right? But what about all the non-smokers who die from cigarettes?

Maybe they didn't know that the smoke rising from the end of a cigarette contains cancer-causing chemicals more concentrated than the smoke coming through the filter.

Secondhand smoke kills a thousand non-smoking Americans a week. It's not just smelly. It's deadly.

It's a Killer (30 sec)

Tobacco kills over 30 people each year in Marion County—more than car crashes, murder, suicide, alcohol, and drugs combined.

But many people don't know that secondhand smoke is deadly, too. The smoke from the tip of a cigarette contains chemicals that cause cancer, stroke, and heart attacks; and in concentrations as much as 20 times greater than what the smoker inhales.

Secondhand smoke—it's not just smelly: it's deadly.
